Ella Fitzgerald - Sings Antonio Carlos Jobim Songbook (1997)

1. Dreamer (Vivo Sonhando) 2. This Love That I've Found (So Thina De Ser Com Voce) 3. The Girl From Ipanema (Garota De Ipanema) 4. Somewhere In The Hills (Favela) 5. Photograph (Fotografia) 6. Wave 7. Triste 8. Quiet Nights Of Quiet Stars (Corcovado) 9. Water To Drink (Agua De Beber) 10. Bonita 11. Off Key (Desafinado) 12. He's A Carioca (Ele E Carioca) 13. Dindi 14. How Insensitive (Insensatez) 15. One Note Samba (Samba De Uma Nota So) 16. A Felicidade 17. Useless Landscape (Inutil Paisagem)

Not for nothing is Ella Fitzgerald still worshipped as the "First Lady of Song" — the three-octave vocal range and power of that voice never faltered. None could scat like Ella and this curious collection of the Grande Dame getting her Jobim on displays both the steadfast strength of her voice towards the end of her life and yields the fascinating "revelation" that such seminal black female song interpreters whose preeminence was eclipsed by rock could take aesthetic risks and get funky (especially on the great, bilingual samba workout "Water to Drink") in their career's sunset years fit to rival Dylan's current touted run. --- emusic.com download (mp3 @192 kbs):

uploaded yandex 4shared mediafire mega solidfiles zalivalka cloudmailru filecloud oboom io

back