Ana Popovic emerges as one of the most intriguing musical artists in recent history. Her roots in war-torn Serbia fill her with a deep sense of purpose. Although she experienced living in a culture of fear and oppression, her music produces a personal message of freedom and inclusiveness, lending urgency to her artistic vision. Her unique musical imagination, influenced from a multitude of musical traditions from around the world, means that she composes songs of stunning originality and depth. And her awe-inspiring guitar expertise leaves even the most critical musicologist open-mouthed with admiration. Ana sings such a wide variety of music, she can't easily be placed in a particular genre. Perhaps a sultry, late night blues siren? A rock goddess? Maybe a tender and thoughtful singer/songwriter with a message? One thing is for sure: Ana is an attractive and charismatic guitar virtuoso, who puts her emotions behind the strums. After a decade of packing clubs and touring across Europe and the U.S., Ana delivers her debut CD release and embarks on a U.S. tour beginning with a showcase at the Sundance Film Festival. Don't miss out on one of the most appealing new artists of the year: Ana Popovic. ---Editorial Reviews
