

Charles Musselwhite Blues Band □ – Tennessee Woman (1969)

Written by bluesever

Thursday, 29 November 2018 14:08 -

Charles Musselwhite Blues Band □ – Tennessee Woman (1969)

A1 Tennessee Woman 3:43 A2 Blue Feeling Today 5:00 A3 A Nice Day For Something 6:35 A4 Everybody Needs Somebody 3:20 A5 I Don't Play, I'll Be Your Man Some Day 3:15 B1 Cristo Redemptor 11:45 B2 Little By Little 2:45 B3 I'm A Stranger 5:15 Bass – Carl Severeid Drums – Lance Dickerson Guitar, Vocals – Tim Kaihatsu Piano – Skip Rose Steel Guitar – Fred Roulette Vocals, Harmonica – Charles Musselwhite

The addition of jazz pianist Skip Rose gave a new dimension to the ensemble sound, and provided a perfect foil to Charlie's own soloing -- especially on the re-take of "Cristo Redentor," extended to 11 minutes, shifting to double-time in spots. Rose's instrumental, "A Nice Day for Something," is a welcome change of pace, and Musselwhite's "Blue Feeling Today" compares favorably to fine covers of Little Walter and Fenton Robinson tunes. --- Dan Forte, AllMusic Review download (mp3 @320 kbs):

yandex mediafire ulozto gett

back