

Huey 'Piano' Smith & His Clowns - For Dancing (1979)

Written by bluesever

Friday, 02 May 2014 15:53 - Last Updated Monday, 15 February 2021 16:41

Huey 'Piano' Smith & His Clowns - For Dancing (1979)

A1 She Got Low Down A2 Somewhere A3 Rockin' Behind The Iron Curtain A4 Beatnik Blues A5 Doin' The Beatnik Twist A6 Don't You Know Yockomo B1 Scald Dog B2 Susie Q B3 Free Singled And Disengaged B4 Tuber-Cu-Lucas & The Sinus Flu B5 Don't You Just Know It B6 Mean, Mean Man

I feel the need to counterbalance the one-star review posted for this classic New Orleans rock and roll record from 1961. While "For Dancing" (1961) does not quite reach the level of Havin' a Good Time (1959), it's certainly a worthwhile album with unique charms of it's own. "She Got Low Down," "Rockin' Behind The Iron Curtain," and "We Want Him Under Alimony" are essential tracks from this fantastic artist. Contrary to what the previous reviewer says, these are not outtakes! ---Mr. 33, amazon.com

Born January 26, 1934, in New Orleans, Louisiana, Huey "Piano" Smith is an American jazz and blues pianist who is considered influential in many musical genres including pop, rock and New Orleans jazz. He composed his first song at the age of 8, titled "Ramsford Street Boogie", named after a street in his neighborhood. In 1952, at 18, he signed his first recording contract and attended and later graduated from The University of Louisiana. He had his first hit with "You Made Me Cry". Early in his career he teamed with Eddie Jones, later known as "Guitar Slim", to form the duo "Slick and Dark". Recording for Specialty Records, he was the first piano player to accompany Little Richard and also played sessions with Lloyd Price and Earl King. In 1957, recording for Ace Records, he and Bobby Marchand formed "Huey 'Piano' Smith and The Clowns". They had million-sellers with "Rockin' Pneumonia and The Boogie Woogie Flu" (1957) and "Don't You Just Know It" (1958), both now considered rock standards. In 1959 Ace Records substituted his voice on a recording of "Sea Cruise", which Huey had written, with that of

Huey 'Piano' Smith & His Clowns - For Dancing (1979)

Written by bluesever

Friday, 02 May 2014 15:53 - Last Updated Monday, 15 February 2021 16:41

newcomer Frankie Ford. It became a million-seller. Huey continued to perform for some time thereafter but was never able to recapture his earlier recording success. ---imdb.com download (mp3 @320 kbs):

yandex mediafire ulozto gett solidfiles

back