Marcin Mielczewski was member of the famous Royal Chapel at the court of the Vasa kings in Warsaw. He was most probably the best known Polish composer in 17th-century Europe. His compositions - mainly religious concertos, masses and instrumental canzonas - were performed even several decades after his death in many countries outside the Republic of Poland.

Extant copies of his compositions and various historical sources suggest that Mielczewski was a household name in Paris, numerous German cities, Denmark, Silesia, Moravia, Slovakia, as well as in Ukraine and Russia. ---makdelart.blogspot.com
