

Joseph Haydn - Symphonies Nos. 48, 59, 92 (1991)

Written by bluesever

Thursday, 22 October 2009 21:05 - Last Updated Sunday, 05 January 2014 17:18

Joseph Haydn - Symphonies Nos. 48, 59, 92 (1991)

Symphony No. 48 in C, 'Maria Theresia' 1. Allegro 2. Adagio 3. Menuetto 4. Allegro
Symphony No. 59 in A, 'Fire'
5. Presto 6. Andante 7. Menuetto 8. Allegro
Symphony No. 92 in G, 'Oxford'
9. Adagio 10. Allegro Spirituoso 11. Menuetto. Allegro 12. Presto
Philharmonia Slavonica Henry Adolph – conductor

Symphony #48 in C major ("Maria Theresia") is believed to have been composed around 1769 for a visit by Austrian Empress Maria Theresa. Haydn later quoted the first movement's opening in his 1779 Symphony #69 in C major ("Laudon").

Although it has a later designation, Symphony #59 in A major (the "Fire" or "Feure") may have been composed well before 1769. Its nickname probably refers not to the work's tone, but because it was in part later used to underscore a stageplay, "Der Feuersbrunst."

Symphony #92 in G major ("Oxford") from 1789, is one of three commissioned by the French Count d'Ogny. Although originally premiered in Paris, this work got its title from a later performance at Oxford, England.

Joseph Haydn - Symphonies Nos. 48, 59, 92 (1991)

Written by bluesever

Thursday, 22 October 2009 21:05 - Last Updated Sunday, 05 January 2014 17:18

download: uploaded anonfiles yandex 4shared solidfiles mediafire mega filecloudio
nornar

back