

Maurice André - Ses Plus Grands Succès (2008)

Written by bluesever

Thursday, 08 March 2012 14:49 - Last Updated Sunday, 16 February 2014 16:13

Maurice André - Ses Plus Grands Succès (2008)

1. Te Deum - Introduction (Charpentier) 2. Suite / Ouverture No. 2, BWV 1067 : Rondeau (Bach) 3. Badinerie (Bach) 4. Concerto En Fa Majeur : Siciliano (Bach) 5. Kantate : Choral "Wachet Auf, Ruft Uns Die Stimme" (Bach) 6. La Traviata (Verdi) 7. Themes & Variations On The "Carnaval De Venise" (Jean-Baptiste Arban) 8. Concerto En Sol Mineur : Grave (Haendel) 9. Concerto En Ut Majeur : Rondo - Allegretto (Mozart) 10. Concerto En Mi Bemol Majeur : Finale - Allegro (Haydn) 11. Concerto : Ouverture (Telemann) 12. Concerto En Re Majeur : Allegro (Telemann) 13. Trumpet Voluntary (Purcell) 14. Concerto En La Bemol Majeur : Allegro (Vivaldi) 15. Concerto En Do Majeur : Largo - Allegro Molto (Vivaldi) 16. Concerto En Si Bemol Majeur : Andante (Albinoni) 17. Concerto En Mi Majeur : Rondo (Johann Nepomuk Hummel) 18. Concerto Pour Trompette : Finale - Allegro (Tomasi) Maurice Andre – trumpet

Maurice André rightly earned the reputation of being one of the finest trumpet virtuosos from the 20th and 21st centuries. He made numerous concert appearances and recordings and inspired composers like Blacher, Jolivet, and Tomasi to write major works for his instrument.

André was born in the Cévennes district of southern France. Young Maurice began taking vocal instruction (solfeggio) at age ten, but two years later, influenced by his father -- a miner, but also an excellent amateur trumpeter -- began playing the cornet and eventually the trumpet. But he also followed his father's occupation, becoming a miner at age 14. It was not long until his father realized the depth of his son's talent and arranged lessons for him with local teacher Leon Barthélémy. Because his father's wages were meager, André could not consider study at the Paris Conservatory, but through Barthélémy's clever plan, he gained admittance, tuition-free, by first joining a military band. At the age of 18, André began studies at the conservatory under Raymond Sabarich. He quickly demonstrated his immense talents, winning first prizes there for both cornet and trumpet playing in his first two years. In 1953, he began playing professionally in two ensembles, the Lamoureux Concert Association Orchestra and the Radio France Philharmonic Orchestra. André captured first prize in trumpet at the 1955 Geneva International

Maurice André - Ses Plus Grands Succès (2008)

Written by bluesever

Thursday, 08 March 2012 14:49 - Last Updated Sunday, 16 February 2014 16:13

Competition. He left the two orchestral posts in 1960 and 1962, respectively, joining the orchestra of the Opéra Comique in the latter year. In 1963, André was asked to sit on the jury of the Munich International Competition, but entered as a candidate instead and captured first prize, thus establishing himself at the age of 30 as one of the leading young trumpeters in the world. He immediately launched a solo career, which was eventually managed by his wife Liliane. He began making his first recordings around this time, most with the French label Erato. Many of his most important and popular later ones, however, were done for EMI. He also recorded for Deutsche Grammophon, Philips, and smaller labels. Because the repertory for the trumpet was relatively small, he began transcribing -- or engaged others to transcribe -- works for oboe, violin, and other instruments. The Tartini Violin Concerto in D major was one such example, the transcription being done by Jean Thilde. André also began commissioning works from some of the leading composers of the day. Throughout the 1960s and 1970s, André maintained a heavy concert schedule, playing with many of the leading orchestras and conductors in Europe and the United States and making numerous recordings. In a 1978 interview, André estimated that he typically played a 180-concert schedule and had made over 220 recordings up to that time. By 2003, André had appeared on over 300 recordings, though he had significantly reduced his concert schedule. While he had recorded music from most periods, he tended to focus on Baroque repertory, such as works by Bach, Telemann, Handel, Torelli, and Albinoni. On many of his concert tours, André's younger brother Raymond, also a trumpeter of some renown, accompanied him. In 1979, the first Maurice André Trumpet Competition was held. Subsequent events in the series took place in 1988, 1997, and 2000. André usually served as chairman of the jury.---Robert Cummings, Rovi download: uploaded yandex 4shared mediafire solidfiles mega filecloudio nornar

back