

Lennie Tristano - Live at Birdland (1949)

Written by bluesever

Friday, 22 April 2011 20:19 - Last Updated Wednesday, 14 January 2015 12:02

---

Lennie Tristano - Live at Birdland (1949)

- 1 Remember Tristano 7:40
- 2 Pennies Tristano 5:45
- 3 Foolish Things Tristano 4:06 play
- 4 Indiana Tristano 5:42
- 5 I'm No Good Without You Tristano 4:19
- 6 Glad Am I Tristano 2:57
- 7 This Is Called Love Tristano 2:42 play
- 8 Blame Me Tristano 2:42
- 9 I Found My Baby Tristano 2:42

Personnel:

Lennie Tristano (piano),
Warne Marsh (tenor saxophone),
Billy Bauer (guitar),
Arnold Fishkin (bass),
Jeff Morton (drums).

All music written by Lennie Tristano.

Tracks 6-9 were recorded in Chicago, Illinois in 1945.

The name Lennie Tristano was conspicuously absent from Ken Burns' monolithic jazz documentary. That's no small omission; Tristano's group, which included the saxophonists Warne Marsh and Lee Konitz (also ignored by Burns) was the first to record what later came to be known as free jazz -- music improvised without pre-ordained melodies, harmonies, or meter. Needless to say, that wasn't mentioned by Burns, either. Tristano did it in 1949, the year this record was recorded, with what is essentially the same band (Konitz is absent here, though he was a regular member of Tristano's group at the time). This record gives no direct evidence of the band's free jazz experiments -- although Tristano is given composer's credit on all cuts, the

Lennie Tristano - Live at Birdland (1949)

Written by bluesever

Friday, 22 April 2011 20:19 - Last Updated Wednesday, 14 January 2015 12:02

---

disc is comprised mostly of standard harmonic frameworks played without reference to theme. However, it does reflect the band's prevailing emphasis on unfettered linear improvisation. The quintet tracks here were recorded by the group's bassist, Arnold Fishkin, during performances at the old Birdland in New York.

The solo piano cuts were recorded in Chicago, four years earlier. The sound's rough, but not unlistenable, especially given the historical implication of the music. Listening to this is like being a fly on the wall of the world's most famous jazz club, witnessing history in the making. It really can't be said that Tristano's piano style was cut from whole cloth -- there's too much of a Bud Powell influence -- but there have been few musicians on any instrument who played with more spontaneous melodic invention. Two others who did were Marsh and guitarist Billy Bauer, also present here; this band placed great importance of creating "in the moment," and listening to this music made over 50 years ago reminds listeners of the value in such an approach. Little jazz being made at the turn of the millennium rivals this set in terms of raw creativity. Popular misconceptions aside, this is an important document. ---Chris Kelsey download (mp3 @320 kbs):

uploaded yandex 4shared mega solidfiles cloudmailru filecloudio oboom

back