In the Reggiano dialect “choka” means “make a noise” and “beck” means “beak”.

“It was an expression my father used when I was a child. Whenever I asked him if there was anything to eat, rather than tell me there was nothing, he would say “A ghe di chocabeck” – “There’s chocabeck”.

“For ages I thought these “chocabecks” were really good to eat. I’m still looking forward to having some !!!” ---Zucchero
