Already established as one of the most promising country-folk artist of her generation Annie Blanchard lives up to the hype on her 3rd album. Surrounded by her usual band mates Jean-Philippe Lagueux and Louis-Philippe Quesnel, the musicians also wrote a few songs and co-produced the album. Her first single Place à l'amour had an immediate impact and made its way on the top 10 of Quebec radio charts. --- archambault.ca

Singer-songwriter Annie Blanchard is from New Brunswick and became a finalist in Montréal's Star Académie in 2005 after working as a hairstylist. Her interpretation of "Évangéline" was awarded the Félix Award by ADISQ for Song of the Year. Annie toured with Mario Pelchat in 2007 and has worked with legend Renée Martel among others. She presents a style of pretty Acadian heartland music with accents of country. Blanchard gives us the first album of 2014 from a major artist, and it is simply gorgeous. Infectious sing-along track "Retrouver l'horizon" with its spicy guitar work is currently being offered as a free download by iTunes. The album contains 11 tracks—10 French and 1 English. She has set the bar high for the reminder of albums due out this year. It's a good beginning. --- musiccanada.wordpress.com
