Jacqueline François (born Jacqueline Guillemautot) was born in Neuilly-sur-Seine, near Paris, in 1922. She began singing at the end of WWII. She has her first hit in 1948 with "C'est le printemps" ("Here is Spring") and wins the "Grand Prix du Disque 1948". That same year she records a song that will become her greatest hit and a world success, "Mademoiselle de Paris". She has been performing in French and English for more than four decades and she toured all over the world (she appeared in the Ed Sullivan Show in 1957), being one of the most successful and classy French singers. Enjoy Jacqueline François' style and voice!
