This was the last show of a very busy year 1978. In autumn they recorded another album "Welcome", and on December 7th they performed in Dortmund, at a prestigious jazz-rock festival, headlining the third day's concert, after Soft Machine (day 1) and Collosseum II (day 2). The band stayed in West Germany for the whole month, giving their last concert at Jugendzentrum in Bucholz. During this frosty evening the band gave a special Xmas show - there were lots of improvisations, a few drums duos of Apostolis and Jerzy, and the songs were presented in considerably different versions. That is why we decided to include it in "Lost Tapes" collection. The set list was also rather different from their standard set list, and as an encore they performed "Why No Peace" from "Welcome" album, a song much in The Beatles vein. --- forum.emule-rus.net
