This is a compilation of all previously released material—a combination of Wolfe Tones material from the Fontana releases and songs from Derek Warfield solo albums. Perhaps this explains the title and altering of the cover picture. It seems (to me) to just call attention to infamous (and acrimonious) split of Derek Warfield and "the Wolfe Tones". I don't know why Dolphin (records) would purposely involve themselves in the situation.

The Wolfe Tones are one of the best and most popular Irish groups and Derek Warfield, who was their leader, still keeps their music alive today. I have a large collection of Irish music, but I have no hesitation in saying that this wonderful set of 3 CD 's is one of my favorites. Derek Warfield is still touring, and if you get a chance of attending one of his performances; I can guarantee it will be an evening you'll never forget. This set of CD's includes patriotic, rebel, historical, humorous, traditional, rousing songs and ballads that will bring out Irish feelings and spirit to anyone of Irish background, and even to those who "wish they were Irish".
