

Jethro Tull – Aqualung Live [2005]

Written by bluesever

Wednesday, 06 October 2010 11:16 - Last Updated Wednesday, 02 May 2018 21:31

---

Jethro Tull – Aqualung Live [2005]

01. Aqualung 02. Crosseyed Mary 03. Cheap Day Return 04. Mother Goose 05. Wond'ring Aloud play 06. Up to Me 07. My God – Jethro Tull, Anderson, Ian 08. Hymn 43 09. Slipstream 10. Locomotive Breath 11. Wind-Up 12. Riffs — Another Monkey 13. Recording the Original 14. Choosing My Words with Care play 15. Hummmmm 43 16. A Different Kettle of Very Different Fish 17. But Is It Any Good? * Ian Anderson – flute, vocals, acoustic guitar * Martin Barre – electric guitar * Doane Perry – drums, percussion * Andrew Giddings – piano, organ, keyboards * Jonathan Noyce – bass guitar

Each era of rock music has had its own craftily marketed phenomenon -- it was the "live album" in the '70s, "unplugged" recordings in the '90s, and since the late '80s through the present day, the "tribute album." But the early 21st century saw another addition -- veteran bands revisiting classic albums and performing them in their entirety. Jethro Tull's most enduring release is largely agreed to be 1971's classic Aqualung, and in late 2004 Ian Anderson, Martin Barre, and their latest Tull mates dusted off the album once more in front of a small audience for XM Radio's Then Again Live series. Since 33 years had passed between the original and the re-reading, the performances on Aqualung Live are slightly more restrained. And while some of Barre's mighty riffs can still be spotted blaring away -- most notably the middle bit of "My God" -- other songs get an overhauling, such as the barely recognizable "Hymn 43." In addition to revisiting the full album, several interview segments are tacked on at the end of the disc, including some interesting bits about the original recording (it turns out that Led Zeppelin were also recording nearby) and the fact that, despite popular belief, Aqualung was not a concept album. Aqualung Live proves that Anderson and Barre are still at the top of their game, unlike some other "classic rock" acts whose playing abilities have diminished over the years. [Aqualung Live was distributed at shows for free during Tull's U.S. tour in the fall of 2005. Subsequently, it was made available as a special limited-edition release, with all artist and publishing royalties going to charities for the homeless.] ---Greg Prato, AllMusic Review

Jethro Tull – Aqualung Live [2005]

Written by bluesever

Wednesday, 06 October 2010 11:16 - Last Updated Wednesday, 02 May 2016 21:31

---

download (mp3 @320 kbs):

yandex mediafire uloz.to gett

back