Miron - Lacrimosa (2015)

01. Death Sentence 02. Night Sweats 03. Keeping My Hands clean 04. Time Is Not On My Side 05. Behind Enemy Lines 06. Sonnet 07. If Heaven Had a Window 08. Nightmare 09. New Religion 10. Zero Phil Naro – guitar, vocals Stan Miczek – bass Chris Lysiak - drums

Toronto hard rockers, Miron, released 'Lacrimosa' in April 2015. The album, out on Melodic Revolution Records, contains 10 songs that are fueled with blistering guitars, driving rhythm tracks, and wonderfully melodic vocals. The album opens with some very cool choral vocals, reminiscent of progressive rock, and dives headlong into high octane rock. The riffs are amazing, woven through beautiful harmonies, dynamite changes, and way cool effects. Check out the effects on 'Nightmare', and 'If Heaven Had A Window', and the powerful vocals on 'Sonnet'. Favorite tracks 'Keeping My Hands Clean', and 'Behind Enemy Lines', with its eastern influence.

The songs are incredibly well crafted, with changes and transitions that make each feel as though it could be its own concept album. A wonderfully enjoyable time. This is not just any rock, but a sound that lays somewhere between Black Sabbath, Deep Purple, and Van Halen, with a 21st century bite. This is MAYHEM rock. --- icantbelieveyearz.wordpress.com
