Jon English is one of few Australian performers who have successfully combined a career in so many genres of music, television, and stage. From the early 70's in the demanding role of Judas in Australia's first and enormously successful production of 'Jesus Christ Superstar', to his Logie winning performance as the convict Jonathan Garrett in the TV mini series, 'Against the Wind', together with countless return seasons as the dashing Pirate King in 'Pirates of Penzance' and the lovable Bobby Rivers in the TV sitcom, 'All Together Now', Jon has contributed immeasurably to the performing arts for nearly four decades.

With no less than 16 music albums to his credit, including the self penned rock opera 'Paris', any attempt to list his many achievements in this short space would only result in copious sins of omission. His hits include Turn the Page, Some People, Hollywood 7, Six Ribbons, Words are not Enough, Hot Town, Carmilla – just to name a few – and his many accolades include multiple Logie, Aria, TV Week, Countdown, RAM Magazine, Melbourne Critics Green Room, AFI and MO awards.
