Personnel:

Coco Montoya (vocals, guitar);
Debbie Davies (vocals, guitar, background vocals);
John Mayall (vocals, harmonica, piano);
Darrell Leonard, Joe Sublett (horns);
Benny Yee (piano, organ); Rob Rio (piano);
Al Kooper, Mike Finnegan (organ);
Mark Williams (drums, percussion);
Richard Hayward, Joe Yuele (drums);
Keillie Rucker (background vocals).

Years of apprenticeship with Albert Collins and John Mayall paid off handsomely for Montoya on this debut effort. Even with help from some famous friends (Debbie Davies, Al Kooper, Richie Hayward [Little Feat], and both former employers), Montoya asserts himself as the focal point. Sadly, this was one of Collins' last studio appearances before his death, playing on the Lowell Fulson-penned "Talking Woman Blues" (commonly known as "Honey Hush"). Although Montoya showcases his massive guitar muscle, it is merely a fraction of the power of his live
