

Terry Garland – Out Where The Blue Begins (2001)

Wpisany przez bluesever

Poniedziałek, 22 Styczeń 2018 12:36 -

Terry Garland – Out Where The Blue Begins (2001)

1 Dude Boy Boogie 2 Dallas 3 Poor Boy Blues 4 Courtesy Of Love 5 Champagne And Reefer 6 Blues Fell This Morning 7 Going Home 8 Running Back To You 9 Can't Be Satisfied 10 My Baby Left Town 11 Out Where The Blue Begins 12 Dust My Broom
Terry Garland - Guitar (Acoustic, Baritone, Electric), National Steel Guitar, Vocals Mickey McPhillips - Sax (Baritone) Richard Ray - Sax (Tenor) Mark Wenner - Harmonica

Showing a deep knowledge and impeccable feel for traditional blues forms, Terry Garland's fourth album is an impressive step forward in his artistic evolution. Joined by Mark Wenner on harmonica, Garland's voice is taking on a weathered quality not dissimilar from that of John Hiatt's, adding another layer of authenticity to his already faithful sound. Still brimming with hypnotic slide playing and primitive foot stomping and positively attacking his National guitar in covers of Johnny Winter's "Dallas" and his original, "Blues Fell This Morning," Garland nonetheless doesn't get stuck in any one gear for too long. A mournful full horn section turns up on the smoldering "Courtesy of Love" and delicate vibes and trombone combine to make a gentle soul-groove cover of Sam Cooke's "Running Back to You." Still, Garland never strays too far from the seminal blues forms that he seems to radiate so effortlessly, never presuming he should write a new chapter in blues history, just happy to trace his finger along the best of the well-worn passages. ---Matt Fink, AllMusic Review

Terry Garland is widely known as a master slide and acoustic blues guitarist. Born in Johnson City, Tennessee, Garland traces his musical roots to such blues greats as Robert Johnson, Jimmy Reed, Blind Willie McTell, Howlin' Wolf and Lighten' Hopkins. He toured with rock, blues and R&B bands before releasing his first solo album, "Trouble in Mind", in 1991. His latest album, "Out Where the Blue Begins", was released in 2001 by Planetary Records. He is

Terry Garland – Out Where The Blue Begins (2001)

Wpisany przez bluesever

Poniedziałek, 22 Styczeń 2018 12:36 -

presently in the studio working on his next project. Terry currently resides in Richmond, Virginia. He tours throughout the USA, Europe and Japan. ---cdbaby.com download (mp3 @320 kbs):

yandex mediafire uloz.to cloudmailru gett

back