

Robert Johnson – The Rough Guide To Blues Legends: Robert Johnson (2010)

1 I Believe I'll Dust My Broom 2 Love In Vain 3 Cross Road Blues 4 Me And The Devil Blues 5 I'm A Steady Rollin' Man 6 If I Had Possession Over Judgement Day 7 Come On In My Kitchen 8 Walking Blues 9 Ramblin' On My Mind 10 Preachin' Blues (Up Jumped The Devil) 11 Sweet Home Chicago 12 They're Red Hot 13 Milkcow's Calf Blues 14 Terraplane Blues 15 Stop Breakin' Down Blues 16 Little Queen Of Spades 17 From Four Till Late 18 Traveling Riverside Blues 19 Hellhound On My Trail 20 32-20 Blues + 21 Elmore James - Dust My Broom 22 Kokomo arnold - How Long How Long 23 Skip James - I'm So Glad 24 Willie Brown - Future Blues 25 Son House - Walkin Blues 26 Roosevelt Sykes - Sweet Old Blues 27 Robert Lokwood Jr. - Take a Little Walk with Me 28 Robert Nighthawk - Black Angel Blues 29 Howlin Wolf - I Want Your Picture 30 Sonny Boy Williamson - Good Morning Little Schoolgirl 31 Sonny Boy Williamson - Eyesight To The Blind 32 Honeyboy Edwards - Wind Howlin Blues 33 Bukka White - Shake 'Em Down

A true original with cult status, Robert Johnson was arguably the most influential bluesman of them all. Lovingly remastered to give exceptional clarity, this Rough Guide breathes new life into the work of a legend, who defined the blues and planted the seed of rock and roll. 'He seemed like a guy who could have sprung from the head of Zeus in full armour,' Bob Dylan recalled of the moment he first heard the voice of the most exotic and mysterious bluesman of them all. Born in Hazlehurst, Mississippi in 1911, Robert Johnson grew up in and around Memphis. In the mid 1920s he lived on a plantation and began to play the Jew's harp, the harmonica, and eventually, the guitar, which he played with the harmonica, fixed around his neck on a rack made with baling wire. Local musicians Willie Brown and Ernest 'Whiskey Red' Brown gave him tuition, while he made his living sharecropping. He was only 17, when he married his first wife, who died in childbirth the following year. During the summer of 1930, Son House came to live in Robinsonville and Johnson became a disciple of his intense Delta blues style. He later hoboed his way 200 miles south to his town of birth, where he discovered a new mentor in bluesman Ike Zinnerman. When Johnson returned to Robinsonville in the mid-1930s after deserting his second wife, it was obvious to all that he had become a superlative bluesman, and Son House may have inadvertently started the diabolic rumours about him by joking that he must have signed a pact with the devil. He continued to play with such musicians as Robert Nighthawk and Elmore James. He also moved in with another woman, Estella Coleman, and taught her son Robert Lockwood Jr to play the blues. In 1936 he auditioned for the blues label ARC, which led to two recording sessions in Texas, producing among others 'Terraplane Blues', the bestselling release in his lifetime. The restless Johnson took to the road

Wpisany przez bluesever

Poniedziałek, 20 Sierpień 2018 12:52 -

again, and only got back in Mississippi in the summer of 1938. One night he was playing at a juke joint in Greenwood, when he was poisoned by the club's jealous owner, whose wife he had been seeing. He died in a few weeks later, leaving a mysterious life and a total of 48 recordings behind. Following the release of the King Of The Delta Blues Singers LP in 1961, the Johnson cult went into overdrive and his songs were recorded by the Rolling Stones, Led Zeppelin and Eric Clapton. The bonus disc highlights his influence on other blues performers who knew, worked, played and travelled with him, or simply followed in his giant footsteps, including Skip James, Howlin' Wolf, Bukka White, Kokomo Arnold and many more... ---worldmusic.net download (mp3 @320 kbs):

yandex mediafire ulozto gett

back