For those who missed seeing Luther Allison, this collection from the seventies finds him at the top of his game as a great old school blues man who pumped fresh energy and passion into some fine old songs from Elmore James, Robert Johnson and Buddy Guy. He puts his distinctive twist into each one, particularly his supercharged version of "Sweet Home Chicago", a song he used to close his shows during this period. Luther took over Freddie King's band after King's early death and he pays an intense tribute to him in "I'm Going Down". Luther had an electrifying effect upon his audiences, the women even more so than the men and he struts his stuff in his fine "I Got Worries." As a devoted admirer of Luther Allison since I first heard him in the early eighties, this album remains one of his four best. ---J. McCarthyJr, amazon.com
