All material on the album is solely written and composed by Cæcilie Norby herself. Lars Danielsson has co-composed 3 of the songs and appeared as both primary pianist and bassist. A significant note about the album is the high degree of intensity derived from collaborations set in a home environment. Prominent musicians, who have influenced Cæcilie's sound both live and on recordings throughout the years, add to the personal and warm atmosphere heard on this album.

"Slow Fruit" also introduced a new collaboration opportunity by the American saxophone player and singer Curtis Stigers, who join Cæcilie in duet on the track "Big Time". "Slow Fruit" is truly a well received album collecting highly appraised reviews. --- jazzrecords.com

Caecilie Norby is one of my favorite singers and she'd be one of yours if you ever heard her. When she started recording jazz on Blue Note in 1995, she sounded remarkably like Nancy Wilson. Since then, she's experimented and grown remarkably into a tasteful, sensuous sound all her own. I was surprised to see this disc, her fifth album, SLOW FRUIT, here. I bought it several years ago with a differnt cover for 3x the price. Still it was worth every penny. I keep playing this disc, several times a month. It's power to delight me never wears thin. ---
