Yuliya Roma - Heartbeats (2006)

1. On the wings of songs 2. People 3. Another time 4. Turn away 5. Roads and loads 6. The taste of love 7. I will be there 8. Smell of the past 9. Heartbeats 10. Every little step Yuliya Roma – vocal Natalya Lebedeva – piano, keyboards Oleksandr Pavlov – guitar Artyom Mendelenko – soprano sax Igor Zakus – bass Alex Fantaev – drums, percussion All songs written by Yuliya Roma, except Another time - music written by N. Lebedeva

It is now four in the morning here, the sky brightens... have opened all windows and am listening to the weightless, cool, but so warm music – fresh air, a double portion... About a minute before the sunrise, all birds become silent, even the morning breeze abates – they are waiting for the miracle – and the sun rises... At this minute of silence, your thoughts, water, air – are the purest and the most transparent, fair and... I have no words to express. But – Yulia Roma's singing sounds just as that minute of silence before the sunrise, as if blue eyes of a child three-month old, attentively and easily... Music of this voice transforms jazz into soft crystal, it is so masterful that it does not attract any superfluous attention – but you cannot actually stop listening, noticing, feeling – and the sun rises, and the heart elates... And when it sings as willow smells gently in the spring – it is right. When you listen to new music and understand that one more real beauty has appeared in the world – it is right. When the transparency of songs goes somewhat beyond the limits of jazz even, not outlining new border – it is right. Now it seems to me that I understand this palpitation, and I know how it is necessary to listen to "Heartbeats". It is necessary to listen not even to the album, not to the singing – but through it. Attentively and easily – it is indispensable. And then this voice lets you in – there, where there is space, and it is fair, and bright... ---Anton Jozhik Leyba (Hedgehog), umka.com
