Hep's Teddy Wilson series sticks to his all-star band sides (skipping his solo piano performances), many of which feature the vocals of Billie Holiday. This entry starts with a pair of vocals by the long-forgotten Redd Harper ("You Turned the Tables on Me" and "Sing, Baby, Sing"), has two spots for the talented singer Midge Williams and also a couple of instrumentals; otherwise, the set is comprised of Holiday vocals that are readily available in more complete form elsewhere. The highlight is Lady Day's first recorded meeting with tenor saxophonist Lester Young and trumpeter Buck Clayton which resulted in "He Ain't Got Rhythm," "This Year's Kisses," "Why Was I Born," and "I Must Have That Man." ---Scott Yanow, Rovi

This may not be the most "groundbreaking" jazz of the late 1930s, but who cares? In my opinion, Teddy Wilson's Orchestra produced some of the most consistently tasteful, enjoyable records of the decade. With Benny Goodman, Gene Krupa, Lionel Hampton, Ben Webster, Jonah Jones, Red Allen, Lester Young, John Kirby, Buck Clayton, Cozy Cole, and so many other greats in the band, how can you miss? And don't forget the dozen or so vocals by Billie Holiday! There's a relaxed elegance to these sides and they just fall so pleasantly on the ears. There's plenty of swing here, but most of the selections are taken at a moderate tempo. The sound restoration by John R. T. Davies is superb--clear and robust sound with minimal surface noise and no digital artifacting. Frank Driggs has contributed some good liner notes and full discographical information is included. Every jazz collector should have at least one Teddy Wilson CD, and this is a good one to have. Highly recommended! --- "Gimpy" Peach Johnson, amazon.com
