

Nigel Kennedy – East Meets East (2003)

Wpisany przez bluesever

Czwartek, 04 Marzec 2010 17:21 - Zmieniony Wtorek, 04 Marzec 2014 09:45

Nigel Kennedy – East Meets East (2003)

1. Ajde Jano 4:24 2. Lullaby for Kamila 3:24 3. T 4.2 6:11 4. Eden 6:06 5. Dafino 2:51 6. Jovano Jovanke 4:25 7. Ederlezi 5:47 8. Kazimierz 3:28 9. One Voice 4:54 10. Tribute to Maria Tanase 3:11 11. Time 4 Time 5:21 12. Vino 6:04 13. Lost in Time 4:22 14. Kukush 4:42
Nigel Kennedy - violin Tomasz Kukurba - viola, flute, vocals, percussion
Jerzy Bawoł - accordion Tomasz Lato – double bass + Natacha Atlas – vocals
Aboud Abdul Aal - violin Members of Kraków Philharmonic Miles Bould - percussion Mo Foster - bass electric

If the notion persists that Nigel Kennedy is the enfant terrible of classical music -- too rebellious or facile to be taken seriously -- then perhaps it is time to reconsider his categorization. Kennedy's varied interests certainly take him beyond the boundaries of the typical classical performer, and his performance style may be too flamboyant to suit some listeners' tastes. But East Meets East is far from shocking, if understood as an exploration of Eastern European music, presented in a fusion of popular styles without pandering to the classical audience with crossover concessions. Fans of world music and open-minded listeners of any stripe may find something to appreciate here. Appearing with the Polish folk band Kroke and surrounded by several guest artists of international reputation, Kennedy shows that his involvement with this ethnic music is honest, if not always inspired. His playing is forthright and spirited, but sometimes overdone, particularly when his electric violin solos wander into rock clichés. However, Kennedy's occasional excesses are counterbalanced by some fine, expressive playing, most memorably in his unaccompanied track Lost in Time. The musicians play well as an ensemble, perhaps most successfully in the vigorous dance style that reaches maximum frenzy in Kukush. ---Blair Sanderson, Rovi download: uploaded yandex 4shared mediafire solidfiles mega filecloudio nornar zi

ddu

Nigel Kennedy – East Meets East (2003)

Wpisany przez bluesever

Czwartek, 04 Marzec 2010 17:21 - Zmieniony Wtorek, 04 Marzec 2014 09:45

back