Anton Bruckner - Symphony No.0 (Davies) [2010]

1 Allegro 2 Andante 3 Scherzo: Presto — Trio: Langsamer und ruhiger 4 Finale: Moderato — Allegro vivace Brucknerorchester Linz Colin Davies - conductor

This Symphony in D minor (WAB 100) composed by Anton Bruckner was not assigned a number by its composer, and has subsequently become known by the German designation Die Nullte (translated to The Zeroth or Number Nought in English).

Bruckner never gave this symphony a number, but long after its composition declared that it "gilt nicht" ("doesn't count") and on one copy of the score he put in an empty set symbol ( $\emptyset$ ). This symbol was later interpreted as a numeral zero. According to the conductor Georg Tintner, this lack of confidence in the work arose from a question by the puzzled conductor of the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, Felix Otto Dessoff, who asked Bruckner, "Where is the main theme?"
